These new SGBM procedures at WMU have been a game-changer for me. They've brought a huge sense of relief knowing there's a clear process in place if I ever need it. The quick initial assessment means I won't be left waiting anxiously, and the detailed investigative report keeps me in the loop every step of the way.

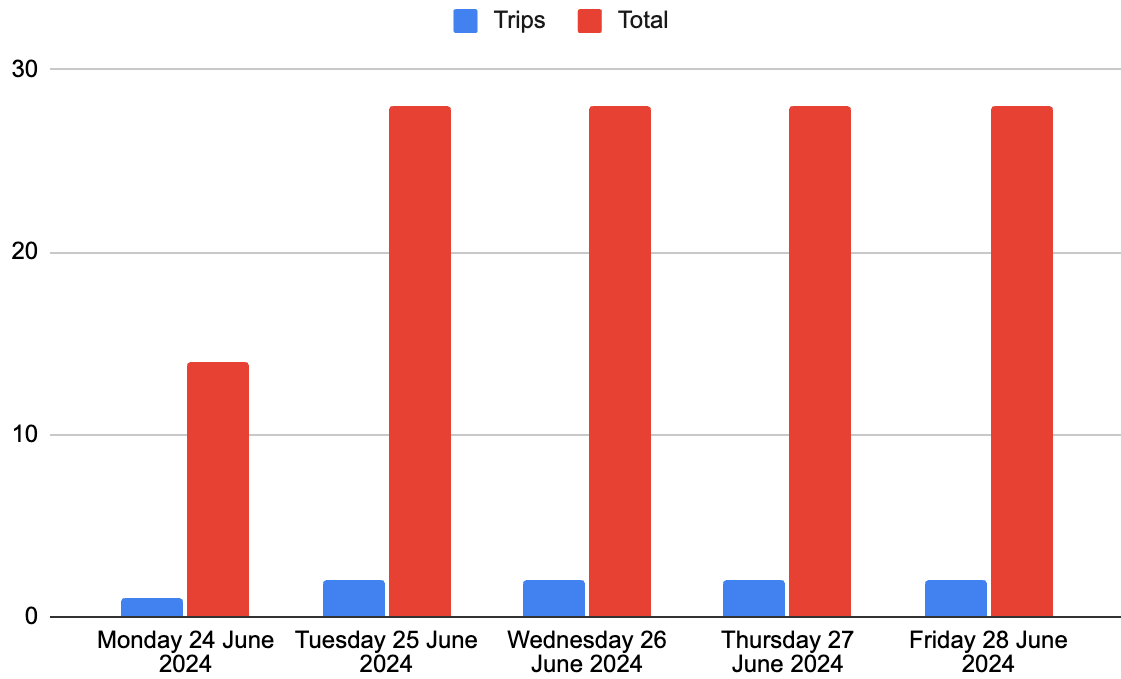

The structured hearing process, with options like videoconferencing, gives me confidence that my voice will be heard fairly. Plus, the range of sanctions available shows the university takes these issues seriously and is ready to respond appropriately.

I also appreciate the focus on prevention and education. It's empowering to know I have the knowledge and tools to recognize and address misconduct, and it shows the university is actively working to create a safer campus environment.

Overall, these updates haven't just made me feel more secure; they've given me the confidence to advocate for myself and others in promoting respect and inclusivity on campus.
